Mrs. Mary Flint Little, the only living daughter of the late Alvin Flint, is in town this week, after a long absence from the place. Her brother, Luther, and herself are the only living persons in her father's large family. She has been twice married and is here to get the proofs of one of these marriages, to secure a pension now.

We have just learned the following of a former long-ago resident of our town, Mrs. Vashti Ann Dufur, widow of the late John Fish of Washington. At the age of 98, she is living with her son, Dr. Fish of Royalton. We judge that everything is being done to make life as pleasant as possible for her, relief to the one gone before.

She is able to read without glasses. In earlier years, her father, Abel Dufur, lived in the Free Baptist church neighborhood, and later her brother, Andrew Jackson Dufur, came to quite a good deal of prominence in Oregon, as we recall it. We think that she is now the only living member of her father's family.

The death of Mrs. Lizzie Earle Goodwin of Barre, noticed in Monday's Times, leads us now to say that as a beloved ex-townswoman in whom we could not fail to feel a warm interest, we have kept track of her long and very sad illness, but have never made any allusion to it in our items, at the wish of her family friends, lest it might give her pain. Mrs. Goodwin is remembered here as a bright young lady, with the attractions that made her popular among her mates and a welcome guest. The nature of her maladies could not but awaken keenest sympathy among her family friends and cause the falling of many a tear. It would not be strange if death seemed to them now a sweet relief to the one gone before.
